THE PRODUCE NEWS

Titan Farms positioned for strong start to peach season

Titan Farms is set to begin the 2026 peach season on schedule, well positioned to support retailers with consistent supply throughout the season. The company offers a unique advantage in delivering reliability, quality and continuity from orchard to shelf. With favorable growing conditions and a strong crop outlook, Titan expects solid volume availability to support retail programs and promotions from the start of the season.

"At a time when supply is top of mind for retailers, we're excited to offer a dependable program backed by our fully integrated model," said Ross Williams, president of Titan Farms. "Our team is focused on delivering high-quality fruit and executing retail programs that drive performance throughout the season."

Titan Farms supports its retail partners with tailored merchandising strategies, industry-leading grading technology, premium branded offerings and innovative packaging solutions designed to maximize sell-through and reduce shrink. "Our focus is on building long-term partnerships with retailers who are looking to grow the category," said Chalmers Carr, CEO of Titan Farms. "We've built our business to support that growth with the right programs, quality and execution."
